How-To Halloween

I never knew there were Halloween conventions. Makes sense in retrospect, since it is a beloved holiday by many. This event was enveloped in darkness to add to the spooky atmosphere. The haunted tour through a tunnel was very fun. I was expecting scares around every corner. The ghoul head jumping out of the barrel was freaky and awesome at the same time. I was impressed by the amount of creativity that people used on their costumes for the Zombie Walk. The best zombie I encountered was none other than Dedd Fredd. He had all the mannerisms of a zombie down and the make up job was good. Thankfully, he didn't eat brains at the convention because that would have taken method acting to a whole new level. The Mega 80s performed medleys of..... well songs from the 80s. They still put on a good show even after quite a few years of missing out on their performances. I even ran into the two scoundrels from The Rogue's Gallery. There was so much "fog" being pumped out in the convention room that the outside hallway of the Lansing Center had an eerie vibe going on at the end of the event. If you like DIY Halloween events, How-to Halloween is worth visiting. A thanks goes out to Jerry and Steve for throwing on this event. I am looking forward to watching it grow.
